What our volunteers say about this role:

'Volunteering is one of the most rewarding roles you can have and it has a plethora of benefits to it. Volunteering within the retail department has given me a deeper appreciation of the charity's work and how vital revenue supports their much needed services for our communities. Individuals will have different responses to 'why' they want to volunteer and for me it's simply the sense of giving something back to my community whilst still gaining experience and important skills that I can take with me as I progress to my chosen career. These skills include; confidence, teamwork, communication and an access to a company's professional environment and expectations - something that I believe has benefited me in many ways.

The friends and support networks that are immediately created are so lovely to be a part of and supporting the charity definitely puts a smile on your face. The best part about volunteering is that you work with so many different people and every day is different. The support and guidance from managers allows you to find new skills but not forgetting to build on those already existing ones. I would strongly recommend volunteering even if it's for a couple of hours here and there because I've always been told "Act as if what you do makes a difference, IT REALLY DOES" and honestly it really does!'
